What's been up answer. What's up meaning answer. What you been up to answer. What's been up with you reply.

12" I'm hanging in there, been a busy week" This is a good answer to use with a coworker who you aren't very close with, but you want to give a polite, not too formal answer. Good. What have you been up to or too? 04" My rent" This is a funny response, especially when your rent has actually gone up. These are nine ways of how to respond to what's up when it is asked by a friend: 01" My blood pressure!" This way is best used if you are getting up there when it comes to your age. 06" Shrug" "You know..." This is a good response to a friend because he/she will likely know exactly what you mean. Score: 0% Rank: Correct Answer: Start Quiz >> Score: 0% Rank: Correct Answer: Start Quiz >> "What's up" means "What's happening." I usually just reply "nothing," because nothing is happening to me. That's a thing of the past! With these ways on how to respond to what's up, you'll never have an awkward conversation again or go blank when a stranger says this to you. A: Good on you mate! 3 What are you up to tonight? It is also good to use if you had a problem, and the friend is trying to get an update even though nothing has changed. You can also use this as a joke. When you say something like this, your friend will be inclined to ask what you mean, which is likely going to start a conversation. You May Also Like: How to Respond to How Are You in a Smart Way? 23" Definitely not your fly" The "fly" in this case means a person's zipper on his/her jeans or pants. Image from Pixabay under pexels license 24" The opposite of down" This is another funny response since up really is the opposite of down. B: I've sold my car. Something went wrong. I'm good, yourself? It is used by characters who are trying to be funny on TV. Photo by Alexander Mills on unsplash 11" I'm busy with this proposal, let's talk later" If a coworker asks you "what's up," but you don't really feel like talking, then this is a good way to get out of it without being rude. Are you confused? It is also good to use if you didn't get that promotion that you wanted and feel like making light of it. If this is your friend, your responses can be more relaxed, fun, and/or sarcastic. You can use a depressed tone if you want to emphasize that you really want to get off work, or you can use a more upbeat and cheerful tone to show that you have something specific to look forward to. It is a good way to start a conversation with a stranger to pass the time. Wait a moment and try again. Photo by Bich Tran under pexels license 14" All kinds of stuff, did you hear about my promotion?" This is good to use when things are going great for you at work. Photo by Alex Block on unsplash 05" That's for me to know and for you to find out" This can be used in two ways. 25" I'm sorry, that's confidential information. What is the reply of what's up? "What's up" is a greeting, a question, and a show of mutual respect or understanding. You can use this response to start explaining what's happening in your life or what is wrong at that moment. You will give the impression that you are not there to make conversation. It says to your friend that things are pretty neutral at the moment, and you're not bothered by the way things are. When he/she looks down at his/her zipper, you can say, "made you look" to make it funny. 17" Nothing special" You can use this response with a coworker who you don't like very much, but you still have to be nice to him/her. What have you done meaning? It is good because it makes you seem mysterious, and it shows that you have a good sense of humor. 13" Counting the hours till the weekend" The best day of the week for working adults is Friday, and this is because it's when they can look forward to the weekend of rest and whatever else is on the agenda. What is the meaning of VE? Score: 0% Rank: Correct Answer: Start Quiz >> "What's up" is a phrase used by people all around the world who speak English. This may spark a conversation as well. You can use this answer when a creepy stranger tries to talk to you, or you can use it when someone annoying is trying to get your attention. What are you up to weekend? It means that you aren't really in the mood for a conversation, but things are okay with you. You want to note that the purpose of this response isn't to show off, but it's simply to share your good news with a close coworker. Have a look at these eight ways of how to respond to what's up when it is said by a stranger: 18" The cost of everything I need to buy apparently" This is a good response when a stranger says "what's up" when you're in a supermarket, clothing store, or anywhere else goods are sold to customers. Knowing how to respond to what's up all depends on the situation or setting. When it's a coworker who has asked "what's up," you'll have to tread lightly if you don't have a close relationship with him/her. 03" Same old, same old" This is a good thing to say if you aren't up to anything new or if nothing special has happened since the last time you saw your friend. 08" Everything that's supposed to be" This response is simple and straightforward. The way you respond will also depend on the scenario. What are you into meaning? Knowing how to respond also depends on the person who said it and whether it is a friend, stranger, or coworker. 19" The ceiling" This sarcastic answer is sure to get a chuckle out of anyone, especially because it is cheesy. You most likely don't want to make things awkward or have to get called in by HR. You can use this when you have to contend with things like high blood pressure on a daily basis. When a stranger says "what's up," the way you respond will indicate whether you're up for a conversation or not with this stranger. 22" Gas prices" This is also a classic answer, and it's best used at a gas station because the prices can fluctuate. This answer shows respect, but it also shows that you don't want to have a conversation because you didn't ask the same question in return. 09" I'm screwed, today I found out..." If this is a good friend, then he/she has probably asked what's up to find out how you've been or because you look worried or unwell. This way, he/she will stop bothering you. These are eight ways on how to respond to what's up when it is said by a coworker: 10" Sure, it isn't my salary" This is a funny response, especially when you both work at a low-paying or minimum-wage job. It is simple, and you're being polite by asking the same question in return, especially when this coworker is not someone you are close to. Where have you been meaning? You can say these exact words, or you can start looking up until the person starts looking up too. 20" What's it to you?" This can come off as rude but rightly so. But, there are alternatives, such as the usual reply to a greeting: Not much Nothing. You May Also Like: 30 Best Responses for When Someone Says I Miss You 16" Me, since 5a.m. I'm pretty tired man" This is a way to say that you are tired and have been up for a while. It is just a way of having small talk. It's fun to use this phrase with someone who you've known for a long time and who will understand that it's a joke. However, if there is something that you would like to tell the other person e.g. You've sold your car, it might go like this: A: What's up? It can also be perceived as a joke, meaning the sky is up, the ceiling is up, the stars are up, and so forth. If I told you, I'd have to kill you" This is a joke that you can use when flirting with a stranger: 15" Nothing much, what's up with you?" This is one of the most common responses to "what's up," and it is generally almost a reflex. The stranger may be confused at first, but when he/she finally gets it, you will both start laughing. It's a good way of saying, "I hate it here" without actually saying those specific words. 02" Not a thing but a chicken wing!" This is popular phrase that could be heard on TV shows a few decades ago. It's also a way to say "nothing much." photo by acworks on photo-ac 07" Ah, can't complain" If you don't have anything good or new to tell your friend, you can use this response. You can say this to a guy who's trying to hit on you as a way to get him off your back because he'll likely be embarrassed by his fly being down. Well, here are 25 responses that will make you a pro at how to respond to what's up: When your friend asks you "what's up," your response can be funny or sarcastic because you are well-acquainted with the speaker. The first way is as a joke, and the other way is used when you are being sarcastic and aren't in the mood to do much talking with anyone. 21" We're going to find out soon enough" If you're somewhere waiting with another person, say in a lobby or line to get help, you can use this answer as a way to say you're unsure and that you're waiting to see how your meeting or consultation goes. This can be used if you don't have high blood pressure as well because it can mean that you are going through a stressful situation. Yourself? Sure, it makes no sense, but hey, it rhymes! That's what will make it super funny to the person who hears it. This type of response says exactly that. It is a good way to answer because it makes sense, and you're at work to do your job. It is good to use at work because it can help you start a conversation that will pass the time until it is the end of the workday. It can also spark a discussion. This is a great way to start a conversation with the cute cashier or handsome guy in the checkout line that you've had your eye on. You're making light of your situation, and you're even bringing attention to your medical issue. This is a snarky way to take a job at the store and get a chuckle out of another customer who probably has similar thoughts. How can you ever run out of ways of how to respond to "what's up" with such a long list? How are you?
